Well, he's right. There's just some things you don't change. I think there could be a semi-successful spinoff of James Bond with P. Diddy being a secret agent from Harlem, but you don't change a series after decades of the same idea. A British (and white) secret agent. It's just like a white slave to a black guy in the early 1800's in the south. It just wouldn't make any sense.
