In a few thousand years time, after a nuclear (or other) holocaust, people will find a few books.

These books will be read, translated into their native language, and taken as the word of God.

In my opinion, Stephen King could be the next God...

Religion should be about peace, and if it meant me dying I'd abandon mine. Abraham Lincoln said it best though.. "Be excellent to each other.."

I'd live my life by that one line if nothing else.
