Here's my thought on mod development:

If creative content designed and built for the modification exceeds the quality of the content in the original game [This means Renegade, in the case of Reborn] then that mod should be considered quite succesful. To meet or succeed a paid development team as a non-profit modification team should be recognized and praised highly. Reborn's graphic content exceeds that of Renegade. So does RenAlert. Or rather, so did RenAlert. Everyone declaring "Reborn Sucks" because they do something like leave out two minor, high poly wires [DISCLAIMER: I'm not stating anyone directly used this as their basis for saying Reborn Sucks. You all know what I mean.] need to shut up.

Don't smoke crACK.
