You may hear that Renegade is dying, but take it from me - it's far from it. The fans are supporting it even more so than EA is. I couldn't give you an average of people online, but it's quite a lot; it hardly decreases either, even with the release of Generals. You couldn't have picked a better time to get the game, now that it retails for about $20 and is still as fun as it was when it was first released. Possibly more fun when you consider what the future holds for it, what with Renegade Alert and Reborn... :bigups:
