I've seen a fair amount of this, and from what I understand she had an eating disorder, which caused cardiac arrest, which in turn caused the brain to pretty much turn into spinal fluid. I've also heard there is a 100% no chance of recovery, and if there was, she'd starve herself again (point made from prementioned eating disorder)

If that's true then she wants to die, she's braindead now. Her soul is most probably gone and recognising people's faces could (imho) be attributed to what little brain she has left.

I think she should be allowed to die seeing as she's pretty much dead anyway. It may sound harsh but I don't see the point of prolonging this when there's millions dying of things like war, cureable disease, murder, etc.
