gbullok heres my stand on this, im a little late, i know. but I think they should honor the husbands decision. HOWEVER: The way in which they are carrying it out is disgusting, prisoners on death row have an easier death then she is getting. Its not fair to starve her to death, and its extremely painful(if she can feel it that is). But I heard its against the law to give lethal injection, go figure..... Why should they honor the husband's decision? She's not his property. Honor her parents' decision since they raised her.
