Where to begin?

I suppose those of you who know who I am, and know the state of my relationship with the Renegade community will view this post with no small amount of confusion. ..Dare I say anger?

I will make this as brief and to-the-point as I possibly can.

Over the past several months, events in my life have coerced me to take a step back, and evaluate my relationships with others, and truly, the direction of my life as a whole. After much contemplation and reflection, I have come to the conclusion that my life will only ever get back on the right track if I make an earnest attempt to mend the bridges that I have so foolishly burned in my past.

This bridge is one of the many on my list.

I would like to convey my most sincere apologies to those of you who I have hurt. Especially to people like Crimson, Blazer, and Djlaptop, who I have relentlessly criticized and slandered. I would also like to apologize to those people who I have treated unfairly in my time moderating the Clan FUD servers, and people like DaveGMM and Kirby098 who I have started silly vendettas with. Believe me when I tell you that these acts are not ones that I look upon with any sort of pride, and that I realize now how immature and cruel they were.

I'm sorry, and I truly wish that you can find it within yourselves to forgive me, and that we all can work together in making the Renegade community stronger going forward.

With that said, I would like to invite you all to play on the new and improved Clan FUD server. I think I speak for everyone in the clan when I say that I have turned over a new leaf, and that I am hopeful that we can develop a strong working relationship, amongst players who know the game, and know how to play it right.

Thank you.
