j4S[p]Aircraftkillerj4S[p]I don't want to see an advertisement at all.

You'd better go find another universe where advertisements aren't what pay for most websites, then.

Lmfao, when did I say advertisements from websites? Quit changing the subject. FireFox has no advertisements on it what-so-ever. I didn't say anything about websites having ads.

The advertisements on the free version of Opera work the same way as ads on websites do. If you click one, Opera gets paid. They're less than a cm tall, and take up less room than any of the normal toolbars that Opera or FireFox use.

Not to mention that Opera has been developing it's browser for over 10 years now. Where as FireFox was created what, 2 years ago?
