If you remember about a year and a half or so ago, Namehunter made a mod and released it to a few testers. It was the most unique thing ever, but it's functuality wasn't going to allow it online with many people.

The mod was basically a little grassy, flat map with an APC as a purchase terminal, and you could get airstrikes and other stuff, and above the GDI base was a platform you could get to to launch an ion attack against Nod.

The thing about this is you could find a certain section of the map and there was an apc you destroyed to create a "Construction Pad." You would go up to a section and poke it and you could buy other things like fortresses or rocket pods (AI controlled), etc. I just wanted to know if anyone else has that mod laying around, because I'd like to play it one more time.
Thanks.
