cowmisfit! don't need to, I have all the info i need in a few short lines. YOu support it and say its not morally wrong to you. Burn in hell, or better yet, go starve to death.

You're really not making the connection in my train of thought as to the difference between having a brain and not having one. I would have no reservations about my body being starved if I didn't have a brain.

j4S[p]Then we'll make up bullshit on how he couldn't see, hear, or suffer from any of it! w00t!

Are you suggesting one can see without a cortex?

gbullRIP. I hope for her sake that she couldnt feel any of the starvation that happened to her.

As do I.

This brings me to an important point...

Do you all really believe that if Michael Schiavo had decided to keep Terri Schiavo alive, that I would be saying, "No! Kill her!" Of course not. My business in this thread is not supporting the death of humans for some weird reason, it's in defense of the court system. Republicans have been trying to sow seeds of dissent in the public against America, and this is just one more attempt to do that. Look at cowmisfit, "we shold ignur lawes too rexcuu teh ladey aganstt teh rooles of Amrica! Oh, i hait yoo tu!"

Just recently, Republicans have also been launching attacks against the 11th circuit of courts, with a bunch of phony reasons for why it should be divided, things like "legislating from the bench".

The country has already decided where it stands on the issue, with 82% of Americans supporting 28 court decisions in a row that Terri Schiavo's wishes are not to be kept in a persistent vegetative state. And yet, the majority of speakers on the media are loud, religious right wingers who denounce facts and endorse anarchy. And that's not cool.

Crimson SFE, with each passing day you are becoming a more and more disgusting human being Uh...?

Crimson You may be knowledgable, but you're far from smart or intelligent until you can formulate your own opinions, which I have yet to see you do.

Oh, honestly. Does my opinion on brain capacity depending on how much of it is left not count? I mainly just bring up my dad's thoughts because it makes you all so happy.

Hydrabut SuperFlyingLiberalTool, you haven't shown a shred of compassion for her or her situation at all.

So you've decided that I have no compassion for her? I could dress up every post with how sorry I felt for her, but that would have no bearing on relevant issues. Of course I feel sorry for her and the people around her, but I figured that would be a given. I suppose you couldn't tell. Hm...I suppose I'll quote your colleague cowmisfit for this one, cowmisfit7: no were not assholes

cowmisfit7: we just ain't sugar coat fuckers who tippy toe around subjects

For once in his life, he speaks well.

Hydra You just had to instigate an argument in her tribute thread and trash the whole mood of it, didn't you?

There was no mood. Mine was the second post, as you might recall.
