The Pope was (and will be) nothing but a normal man in an extremely fortunate position. The man lived a good life and died a natural death in the company of his closest clerics.

Terri Schiavo was a normal woman placed in an extremely abnormal situation. Because of it, she was wrongfully (morally) condemned to death by starvation in the pretext of a completely legitimate legal authority. There was an injustice with Terri Schiavo, only not of the legal system. And that is why people are so extremely vocal regarding her death.
