CrimsonDo I need to form a corporation to have the business be legitimate? Or is there somewhere else to register it?

depends on your state laws, and how you form affects the types of deductions you can take. In Montana, you don't even have to file any paperwork for a sole proprietorship, in washington, it cost like $75 for the "business license". Corporations have some advantages, like removal of liability against your personal interests, but you'd have to talk to someone there in Az to get a good picture of which way to go.
