Most alcohol tastes horrible and it would seem likely that many people kid themselves that they like it so that they can get drunk. Drunks aren't a problem so much as what they leave on the street as you walk to work the next morning...despicable.

I like some alcohol, of which I take at pubs and parties, but the stuff I take has little in it and is more on the tasty side as it holds less than 5%. Although we sometimes buy a bottle of vodka between the 3 of us at my house...that stuff gets you dizzy after like 3 mixes, and it tastes terrible if you don't put in enough coke/irn bru/lemonade. What about shots? I hardly ever take them...
