
Subject: Anything you wanted to Know/Be Done
Posted by Walrus on Wed, 04 May 2005 23:13:01 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I got an answer!

Quote:The sky is blue due to the Rayleigh effect - you know, the light scattering in the atmosphere. Green light isn't affected by this - it's one of the wavelengths that just passes straight through the atmosphere unaffected.

No matter how pleasing it is, it just doesn't get scattered, but blue light does

Now I wish I had put down more answerable questions.
