SEAL would any court ever give you any money for something that cost you diddly squat to make

Uh, time is money. So if he puts his time into making something he can claim it as a learning experience to build his skills for a possible job.

If you make furniture out of your garage just for your home, and someone comes in and steals it or burns it..... damn right you will be compensated, even if you weren't going to sell it in the first place.
