Oblivion165But Texas....Ah, man just something about it. Here i am stuck in North Carolina. Pfft.

Chapel Hill is the place to be.

EDIT: Funny story about Ohio, namely how they're the most corrupt state in the nation...

A guy they have there, Tom Noe, was authorized, under the table, to invest money in rare coins by the Ohio Bureau of Workers Compensation. He's a rare coin dealer. He was authorized to invest 50 million dollars of this state money in rare coins. Currently, several coins are missing, each valued at 1-200,000 dollars. When finally questioned about this by the Toledo Blade, it was declared the coins were "stolen" but no police report had been filed. When this case went to the State Supreme Court, 5 of the 7 justices recused themselves.

Doesn't that just smell.
