Civil war is inevitable if fucks like Newsweek keep screwing everything up. It's damn hard to try to help a country when every liberal world wide is trying his damndest to get us blown up! You don't want to see that 20 more american soldiers died in a suicide TP-ing attack, stop giving them a reason. They get coverage world wide attacking what all the fucking news channels portay as Satanerica. "The Associated Press has received reports tuesday that President Bush actually flayed several Iraqi babies while he was on vacation there making poor people fight to their deaths for the right to be punched in the face." For gods sake why do you think they hate us?

I go over to Nodbugger's house while he is out and his mom lets me in so I can run an endurance race in Gran Turismo 4 on B-spec mode on his PS2 since he never uses it and its a 24 hour race and my brothers use my PS2. I go in, set it up, have it run, make sure the driver does the first few laps ok and then I leave. Now SFE who is a neighbor watches me go in and come out. I come over the next day and Nodbugger answers the door and says "You aren't getting your fucking game back! I can't beleive you! You better watch your back." And I go "What the hell?" Now it would seem that SFE saw me go in and out, and being that I was inside his house, he naturally assumed I must have stolen all his stuff, killed his fish, kicked his dog, and said that ROTC was not as cool as he thinks it is. Now I don't have my game and Nodbugger is mad at me. Now a few days later he is calmed down enough to tell me why he is mad, and I tell him none of that happened. And we have word against word, mine against SFE's. I convince Nodbugger with some more time that SFE was just making it up. There's no evidence, all your stuff is still in your room, and so is your money, and your dog is unkicked. He says that's alright and that he's not mad anymore, but he broke my Gran Turismo disc for revenge. Here I am, doing nothing wrong, with a broken Gran Turismo disc, throuh no fault of my own. I go to SFE and say Dude! Look what you did! Get me another Gran Turismo disc! I love this game and it was expensive! and he won't pay for it. All he says is "mistakes were made, of course not by me, but by... uh... society!"

So I go home depressed, because all I did was nothing, and I lost my favorite PS2 game. Tell me how that is cool?
