And in real war you might also steal the suit of the enemy so that their "obelisk" wouldn't detect that you were part of the GDI, or his C4 charge and pistol, along with any cigarettes he might have, his lighter and tobacco so you can "roll yourself a big one" while your teammates risk their lives...and in real war you could flicker around like a fairy and attack people with guns that fire lightning beams...you could refill all your health status and ammo in one go...to hell with the field medics and base hospital.
