

---

Subject: Re: Reborn & Reality Television

Posted by Halo38 on Tue, 14 Jun 2005 16:33:38 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

vloktboky wrote on Mon, 16 May 2005 16:30 If it were up to me, I'd rather we not have a public image at all. I'd rather have a finished product first. A few screenshots here and there, and the occasional heads up is fine, but I will never go along the paths of other modifications where every single new item or alteration to said item is broadcast simultaneously to its completion or stepping-stone acquisition. Quite frankly, I hate having to deal with the public - it's just one more thing to constantly monitor and worry about. Having 100% of my attention focused to what is most important - the game itself - seems far more practical than wondering if Joe Smith likes my new model or texture. That's just poorly-managed timed.

Like I said, I never tried any modification - I have only seen what they have shown me in such places as this. And from what they have shown me, I don't care too much for most of them. If they had not shown me anything, or even bothered acting the way they have here, I wouldn't have a negative opinion on them. Heck, I wouldn't even have an opinion on them, as I would probably not even know they exist. However, if they had come at me for the first time with a finished, or partially finished product, that not only looked and sounded appealing, but also had high standards and high regards, I would have been blown out of the water. You bet I'd be downloading it and trying it right away. It may have had a chance, but it was blown the minute that said team publicly dehumanized one of the other modifications or acted in a similar piss-poor manner.

Exactly

---