Renardin... They cant possibly be Max settings... You dont even have any antialiasing on. And double check the settings. I changed them, but for some reason BF2 didnt record my changes when I next ran the game, so I thought I was running max settings when I was still running medium.

I run all settings on the highest possible, except antialiasing which I think is on 4x, possibly 2x. I think my card could handle 6x just as well though, the only stuttering I get is when I fly over the map for the first time.
