SEAL:

Hemp was, but that was mainly for rope, not for smoking. (side comment:the good idea ended up being used for bad -kind of like everything else). As for the concept of "being available", that may have been the case, but it was never used to the degree as alcohol and tabacco were.

mrpirate:

a "distortion of reality" refers to anything that changes the way you think to such a degree that it could become harmful. Medicine that makes you drowzy does that, hence why you are not supposed to "opperate machinery" when you take it. Pot does it to the point that you are not as alert as you should be/don't percieve things as you normally would; as Crimson's post points out.
