Well Patch's are pretty good for their money against infantry but i'd rather get an officer to do the job just as well. I think the difference between the two is the firing rate and the tiberium poisoning. Any unit is good if you're able to use it however. I don't think it's much underrated. I use it when/if I get bored of using an officer and decide to be a little different. I use a tib sydney too just because i find it funny when i get kills with it against, say, a sakura
