Posted by terminator 101 on Fri, 05 Aug 2005 21:13:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

1. Ability to change function of every button to the way you want to.
Quote:Most modern games allow you to do this anyway right?

Not exactly. Many games do not allow this. For example GTA does not allow this(not sure about San Andreas). On PC, at least 90% of games allow you to change controls to any way you want to

2. Free on-line gaming
Quote:No Chance

You sure? PS2 has free on-line gaming so why shouldn't PS3 have it free too?

3. More First Person Shooters that allow mouse
Quote:Likely but who knows?

I think that EVERY First Person Shooter (or third person) should allow the use of mouse. I just don't understand why GTA Vice City, Or Ghost Recon does not allow use of mouse (I have not tried these games with mouse, but they are not on list of games that allow mouse)

5. Ability to browse web
Quote:Why? Every man and his dog has the internet already.

I guess you are right, but it would still be cool. O.K never mind that

6. Ability to play american as well as European DVD movies (not games)
Quote:This wouldn't really appeal to me as I don't watch many movies. I suppose it would benefit somewhat.

Yeah it would be good. Through this point, I also wanted to say that I understand why they made it so that you can't play European PS games on American PS and vice versa, but I think that Europe and America should not use different DVDs for movies.

O.K I have few new points to add:
7. More RTS games! (you can almost count number of true RTS games for PS2 on both hands)

8. More games that would have ALL of this:
- AI (enemy/friendly)players/bots in multiplayer
- (at least)4 player split screen
- (at least 2 player)co-op with friendly bots included(this is rare right now).
VERY few games right now have all of these things.

9. Games that would allow the USB head set to be used instead of some buttons (ex.: In Need for Speed if you say "go" the car will start(you get the idea))

That is it for now.