Not every person who dont have renguard cheats.

You didn't answer his question, nor explain the fact he can shoot WAY to the side of a player for a kill in a relatively lagless situation.

PS: All you dumbfucks who think only losers call ramjets n00bjets have clearly never played with the people I have. Generally it's the n00bjets who suck ass, hence they use n00bjets to try to compensate. They do not "own" people, and I cannot even really consider ANY kill with a n00bjet "owning" somebody. "LOL I PWNED YOU I SHOT UR HAND" Wow. Skillz. Right there. "LOL I TOOK A RAILGUN SHOT AND LIVED! SKILLZ!" No.

N00bjets users chronically suck ass. They do nothing but steal kills from people who would deserve them, and encourage suck-ass performance.

Let me mention it is better against light vehicles than a damned railgun. And it shoots faster, scopes, and has great range.

Homey wrote on Sun, 28 August 2005 00:13 Yeah they're over powered, but not against infantry. Clearscope isn't a cheat. So what if it's a slight advantage, bright skins are, sbh skins are, having a faster computer is and there are more things. Big deal, accept it.

90% of players consider removing the black border from a weapon that's already overpowered a cheat. It adds even more overpowered-ness especially against infantry which are smaller targets and therefore harder to target. 90% of players consider bright skins, solid-color-player-heads, and sbh skins cheats. In fact, I daresay only players who don't use them themselves consider purposely-bright SBH skins cheating, because when cloaked even at visible range, only about 30% of an SBH is visible. The bright, solid skins make that be 100%. Many server owners have a special way to deal with it: they kick or ban a player.

Having a faster computer shouldn't be a huge issue. You can play this game FINE on a 1ghz computer with a not-even-32mb vid card. I did it all the time before I got my current system with a whopping (lol) 64mb video card. Sure, sniping during a flame tank rush will be harder, that's true! But compared to the skins intended to outright imbalance things and render camo and dark colors useless, that's in no way a cheat.

Hey, I know! By your logic, having better coding skills and creating your own hacks is just another advantage a player brings with them to the game huh? Just like those who recolored the player heads bright red, and those who made SBH 75% more visible.

Making the boundaries that are shootable around a character's head and making your weapon have a wider blast area would definitely count as a cheat, too.
