And you sound like a twelve year-old. I don't like that, but I've grown accustomed to it, considering this is the Internet, afterall. Frightening how it actually comes about, and who it infects, really. My sister, for example, is a thirty-three year-old woman with a highly-reputable job as a police dispatcher for the City of Phoenix. However, her job has taught her this. To type fast, you must sacrifice "unimportant" things such as grammar and spelling. No kidding. She types like everyone else on the Internet as part of her job. It's ridiculous! But I digress. I'm just getting ranty again.
