
Subject: Re: Highest Gas Price seen

Posted by Aircraftkiller on Sat, 03 Sep 2005 09:56:46 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Oil companies besides OPEC have nothing to do with the prices. Their assets were hit hard by the hurricane, obviously the price will go up. It's simple economic sense, the less gasoline is available, the higher the price goes. If the companies didn't charge that much, they'd lose a lot of money and you wouldn't have any gasoline whatsoever. So be thankful that it isn't completely gone yet, or that it doesn't cost $10 a gallon.

Even then, gasoline doesn't cost that much. It's still about the price of a gallon of milk, and if you decided to buy 20 gallons of milk every two weeks I bet you'd be bitching about the price of that too. Conserve fuel and get your fat ass on a bicycle; or start walking.
