because they are friggin morons, they take away support, then they WOL chat(for those that play other WW games)...now they taunt us by associating the worst game of the cnc series with WW, and power? well...i do believe they have power, they had the power to buy out WW because they were scared they would break of and were becoming to big of a threat to the big company EA, they had the power to take away support, heh they got the power to take away wol to...about once a year they send an employee to check up on wol (i believe his name is richard?)...but never the old ones (some of them have more players than ren almost) the last time they sent anybody to fix wol in RA2 was a year and a half ago to fix the clans...
