If you see a rock thrown at your fan, do you catch it before it mangles the blades? What if that rock started growing in flight? What if that rock also grew harder while it was flying? You can still catch it. Would you watching while it flew faster toward the fan? Would you watch while it in slow motion as it catches the air from the blades? Would you watch as it hits and knocks a blade of the fan? Then, could you sit and honestly think to yourself you didn't make a big mistake not catching it?

Yes, let's all make a problem bigger then it should be. Let's give them more nuclear power plants. Let's give them more money. Let's give them time to improve their missiles. Let's give them time to build more nuclear weapons. Let's give them time to build decoys for missiles. Let's give them time to let the next generation into military service. And let us finally watch the beast we have allow to grow and feed bite our hand. Then let us then spend thousands of men to go in there and drag the beast off our arm. Send more to try to tame the beast and whip it into submission. Send more still to kill the beast.

You claim North Korea isn't an Iraq. And you can keep telling yourself that until you president claims it is. And by then you can realize how much it isn't an Iraq. Its Nazi-Germany with a nuclear program that is actually succeeding.
