Don't you still have to hit a Stealthed unit(if they're not within viewing distance) before you can see them? Like in the case of sniping. You can't see Stealthed units through the scope unless they become unstealthed or something hits them.

Anyway, after watching this video, I can honestly say this was not worth the 36.7 MB download. It basically shows you getting reemed to death, shows that you use a high-visibility skin for Stealthed units, and shows you obviously lack any real stringing-together techniques in making videos. The video, aside from one or two parts, does not synch with the music in the least. Also, at around 3:40, we can clearly hear "GDI Infantry Barracks Under Attack". Niiice. . . Little word of advise. Don't bother making a "music video" until you have something interesting to show us. And for Christ's sake. Synch it up with the changes in the music or something. Make it interesting to watch. Fucking with the hue and color balance does not make this video "r0x".
