What program are you playing the video on?

Usually I can use windows media player on both monitors, but other programs wont do this because they use either the primary or secondary display device only (even if its 2 connections on the same card), and will therefore only work on the one you set it to work with in the options.

Try looking in the programs options and switching it to use the Secondary display device.

EDIT: Also check that the output is set to PAL (or NTSC if you are using an american TV)
