Ok. Communism and Nazism are not the same thing. They are opposites. Complete opposites. Not in reality they aren't. But on paper they are. Communism is the people own everything. Everyone has an equal share. There is no free enterprise. No one can make large sums of money. The government controls everything. Under Nazism there is free business. People are free to do as they wish. Except with Nazism, the dictator has the power to do whatever he wants. Which means that if he wants control of a business, he'll take it and no one will stop him. Communism is radical democratic and Nazism is radical republican. They are opposites but always in the end some mad man on a power trip ruins both for the entire country.
