I think Autodesk is currently trying to decide if they'll allow having Gmax and an alternate way to have it registered hosted on a community server...

The registration was just there so they can count how many people are using it, or something similar, it was never a paid service. Since Autodesk dropped (fully effective soon) Gmax and all support for it (including the registration server), there would be no way to use it (install it) unless a crack or some work around for the registration is included.
