ok if i am readin this correctly - norton is causin this hacktool thing thru svkp - an ya'all are suggestin that we allow it by forcin nortons to ignore it - hmm

now my question is - what about the actual viruses or worms or what ever that are usin svkp - if we allow it then we might as well as throw all our anti virus programs away and let the infections begain so what am i supposed to do i wont throw my antivirus away nor will i force it to allow svkp. this seams like a problem that you guys need to address and repair versus puttin your hands over your eyes and sayin to ignore it i trust your program - its a pain at times but very functional and i commend you all on it - but i am forced to not use RG till YOU fix it bummer too - i really liked it thanks alot for everything and good luck on this one
