That's the beauty of it. He COULD be the FSM!

If you're calling it an assumption, you're mostly correct. All of our intuitions are assumptions. Some can be said with near absolute certainty (like the sun rising), but none can be absolute. Which is why I try and emphasize that what I'm saying is only extremely probable, but never definite. I say it is probable because all the reasoning and empirical datum I can find suggest to me that above all else, all things are caused.

If you can prove/suggest to me otherwise, then I would gladly lend an ear.
