I was just wondering why don't you have a disclaimer telling renguard users you don't have to have renguard in order to play renegade .3rd party programs like renguard are not required for renegade, especially a program that uses open ports . Calling players noobs or insulting people on servers for not having renguard is pathetic, it shows just how much class the server owner has . Some how players are convinced if you don't have renguard you must be cheating so they !forcerg and get kicked from the server until renguard is installed. I personally refuse to install a program that is unofficial and has unofficial patches to it , it's not paranoia it a security issue with my network .
the word unofficial means its not coming from Wol or EA so why would anyone trust it ? because it says anti cheat ? I think its putting to much trust in a program that has to much access .
