Xerevix wrote on Wed, 26 October 2005 00:25I would add one more step though. Norton Antivirus has an "Auto Protect" feature. You must put the SVKP file under the exclusions list for this feature as well, or when you start renguard again, the auto protect will kick in, and you'll get that same message.
Aha! That must be why RenGuard only works once for me after following my instructions (and then need to do my instructions again to work once more). Cool. Now I can use 1.03 again! Yayayayaya!!!

Edit:
If you are still having trouble with SVKP, please follow the instructions at the link below!
 http://www.renegadewiki.com/index.php?title=RenGuard_SVKP_Is sue#Alternate_solution

Would someone mind letting me know if a reboot is necessary at all? It may be just that I was missing that "Auto-Protect" exclusions list...