i agree with the others kill some extra programs. also check and see if you or someon else has loaded other background programs.
goto: start / run : msconfig then click the start up utillities look for programs u really dont need. make a note .
goto control panel and uninstall. if u want to keep them then open the specified program and set it to not start when the computer starts.

 look see if you have any conflicks in the device manager.

also raise up your hz under the monitor settings.

i hope something here helps
