Let me make it easier for you as you still appear to be unable to read:

Quote: Finally, here's something to help you out

Your = possessive. Example, "I like your car"

You're = you are. Example, "You're so unorigional"

First of all, isn't it weird how you of all people can call me hypocritical.

Next, you need to sort out the difference between plural and singular. I called you an idiot, not people idiotS.

I don't talk to people in my community like that, no. You'd do well to be able to differentiate between text and actual speech.

Quote: I have made some deductions from this forum as well. Your a lonely, prejudice, little person with a bad speech impediment.

Thanks for proving my point about the mental age. The way I act on a forum, be it mature or not, has no affiliation whatsoever with how many friends I have, whether I'm prejudiced or not, how little I am or whether I have a speech impediment or not.

Now where you seem to have conjured up that complete stream of drivel is beyond me. Let's start on this,

1) Prejudiced: An adverse judgment or opinion formed beforehand or without knowledge or examination of the facts.

I based my deduction on the way you act. I have what we English call reasons for why I think you're an idiot, and I think I've made these clear enough. Now go back and READ before you ask me what these are. I know you appear to be incapable of this ominous activity but give it a try. You may be amazed by the results.

Learn the meaning of the word before you use it please.

2) Speech impediment? A hinderance or obstruction of speech. I don't know where the fuck you got this idea from, when exactly have you heard me speak before? How you deduced that I have a speech impediment from mere text is mind-numbing stuff.

Moving on,

Quote: I don't know about about you

Enough said.

Next, the "him and I" phrase is technically correct yes, but the "me and him" phrase is also a commonly accepted phrase amongst today's society. "Him and I" is mainly for formal usage and in case you haven't noticed, I'm not writing formally to you or any other members of this forum.

Quote:Quote:You're making something out of nothing. This argument is pointless.

I agree

Then why continue it? If it's so pointless, why do you so stubbornly keep posting?

Finally, the quote below simply shows the irony of what the fool posted.
