I not sure if anyone here knows perl to the extent you would, so I think it might be a loseing battle, though from your original coding I might to able to release a version of bugfixes and maybe a few new features. (I learn well off examples, thats how I learnt php)

While you have gone replacement bots have been made (None released though), but if no one can take this project on, I might have a go if you want.

It's a shame you left our active community, but wether those be personal or other reasons, i'm sure they were good.

I hope you have a good time with other communties in the future.
