Some friends of mine including my brother did this little display in a pizza place:

Several years ago, my co-workers and I had a McDonald's cheeseburger-eating contest when they had the 49-cent cheeseburger special. I ate like 5 of them and after that I couldn't eat there for at least 6 months. It was horrid. But in the last year or so I have completely eliminated McDonald's from my list of restaurants to visit.

Man, the 49-cent cheeseburgers were worth eating the plastic that they're made of. I went and bought 100 cheeseburgers for $54 (eg, +tax) and lived off that for a week, after which about the last 15 went bad...

What's really sad is I didn't get fat, which made a number of people jealous.

By the way (this is totally out of the blue), the sensors on those Super Shot games (eg, the basketball game in your movie clip's background) are a royal pain in the ass to calibrate.
