Considering the library of ROMs that can be run on the PSP, it has far more good games than the DS.

Also, PSP games are getting much better. With the release of Dexter, and Syphon Filter: Dark Mirrior the system is finally getting what it needed, in terms of a solid library. And for the record, Syphon Filter is a shooter and it controls great.

About the games, the DS was the same way. For awhile, there was a huge lack of titles available. Just now is it getting some good software.

DS carts are extremely limited in space. They are also fairly expensive to produce.

3D games also come out looking horrendous. The DS is basically an updated GBA with a 3D chip in it.
