Whats wrong with how it would work... you use the remote controll part by movement, have u not read about read about how the revolution controller works? As for how it would feel.... i cant see how the feel of that would be a problem at all, ur left had is free to move, your right hand is free to move, the left part had the analog placed nicly under ur thumb, the controller part looks quite comfortable when u look at side shots, its kinda beefy unlike an actual remote for your tele.

Even after you explained how it would work, it makes me feel even less willing to try it. I hate TV remotes, they piss me off, so this would piss me off just as much. Even if it didn't have millions of buttons. I'm sorry, but I find it ridiculously STUPID to be pointing a controller at the TV and just the way you would use it.
