Here's a quick post about CnCCommunity.net which will be opening soon. If you have your own C&C site please could you post this on it??

Thanks.

==========

COMING SOON : "CNC COMMUNITY"

Within the next few weeks myself and Aaron from Westwood Experience, with help from Col. Burt, will be launching "CnC Community" - a Command & Conquer community hub with the aim if improving the community and bringing it closer together. It will also bring the community and the developers closer.

Staff members from Community sites will be able to join the community hub and post information about news that is available on their site, events that are happening in the community and any other information they feel will benefit the community. Members from the C&C development teams past and present will also be posting news and information on the site to keep the fans updated with everything that is happening. We currently have 14 past and present C&C team members who will help on the site and more are joining all the time. As well as the news pages here are some of the features which will be available on the site

* Developer Diaries - Members of the development team will have an opportunity to keep us updated with the progress of upcoming releases.
* Community Diary - Every week we will be keeping a diary log of news and events from all around the C&C community.
* Rants - Community members and developers will have a chance to post rants about anything that they want to (C&C related of course).
* Developer pages - Past and present developers will each have a page where they can post information about themselves and any news that they think may be of interest to the community. Their page will also include profiles and photos if they wish to add them.
* Fansite of the week - Where possible we will select a fansite from the community to be the featured fansite every week. They will be mentioned on the site and their webmaster will be interviewed.

The features above are just some of the things that you will find on the site when it launches. We have many other features planned which you may enjoy.

The address of the site will be http://www.cnccommunity.net although currently there is only a coming soon page.

If you own a Command & Conquer website and would like to have posting access for you and / or your staff members then please e-mail membership@cnccommunity.net with site details and name, nickname, e-mail address etc for staff members you wish to post news on your behalf. Also please contact us if you have any suggestions for things to add to the site.

PLEASE NOTE : We are expecting a small amount of downtime over the next few days while our hosts do something with the server. We don't expect to be down long. If you e-mail the membership e-mail address and receive an error message then you can always e-mail cncw.admin@btopenworld.com .

I'll keep you updated

-Scott "Cabal" Daniells