It's a bit fast, you should reconsider what you add as to when it should be released. Sure, you might have added some stuff but it's not that much each release compared to the next day when you seemed to have doubled the amount of additions, making the releases seem kind of pointless. Otherwise you should release key features one at a time, rather than in small chunks. Many of the last releases just seem to be engine calls, not exactly many new fancy scripts.
