The Human Psych : The Reaction to Inviornmental Resentment

A short thesis by: Johnny Lasale

The human brain is a curious thing, it is a wonderous yet cruel piece of the body. Humans can be all giving and understanding, and at a moments notice, turn into violent resentful creatures.

I was recently playing a game, one of which i will not say it's name, for I do not want to give the impression of it being a hateful one. This game in which I played had a certain site which held forums;

I devised a plan to study the reaction of humans to harassmtent and beleagurment over the enternet.

While studying this, I noticed people over the enternet (most likely ones with low self estime or low strength in real life) would gang up on, or harass those who they believed were weaker or more feeble than themselves. The people would use any example or any excuse to make the other look more stupid, more weak, or finaly, more self resenting.

It is entresting how low humans will go to get back at another, or how low they will go even to make others feel bad or sorry for themselves even when they're "victim" has done nothing, in so that they can feel more powerful and more in-control.
