I've just recovered(still actualy) from a 6year blackout, that is with no PC or internet. So I've been away from renegade a long time and al this new improvements are just to much to swallow at once, altough i'm up in heaven. Im glad that I still remembered my account and pass or else I would have to register again and that would have been a pain.

Also about the time I was playing the game back then I started a clan wich wasn't that big yet, however It seems that the WOL server is no longer so is there a way I can get to it?

BTW how long did it take any of you to be good at sniping on renegade cuz I suck at it(maybe becouse I don't feel the need to train at it).

*could u post the reply on this last question in a different forum? this way we won't have to go off-topic*Xwis has taken over WOL. Renegade system doesn't allow clans anymore (for the moment). Your old nick and pass have been reregistered when u first logged in without u noticing . Lucky noone took it over . Add me on msn if you want more info. (see profile)
