Did you know there is this little thing called edit button? NO? o.k I will tell you where it is. When you post a message, and look at it after it is posted, look to the right part of your screen(or part where your right hand is). Now, there are three buttons, first one says edit, second one is Reply and last one is Quote.

Now you click one the edit button with your left mouse button (if you are left handed then use right button) and.....

.....Wow, your post appears again but this time you will be able to edit it and after you are finished, click on the apply changes(I am not going t tell you where that button is, you have to find it for your self), and your post will change.

When you do this, you 1.won't double post, 2.Won't look like idiot for double posting.

Remember, post count is as important as a fly on a wall.
