Dude, seriously. Don't try to defend a funeral that took place in a fake online world. The people who started the funeral even made a topic on their realm specific forums that they were going to have tons of people in a PvP enabled zone. The people who attacked them had every single right to destroy the so called "funeral" considering that they were told that there was going to be a huge gathering of the opposite side. More power to the attackers in my opinion.

A funeral in an online game is just as stupid as a wedding in an online game. And it's retarded that either of those actually do happen on a regular basis.

[EDIT] Oh, and you little comment about open PvP, simple answer. If you don't like it go play on a regular server. PvP servers are made for people who enjoy attacking people of the opposite faction on sight.
