
Subject: Re: looks like xwis dosnt care any more
Posted by Zion on Sun, 07 May 2006 00:07:34 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Ok, ok. Enough with the arguments already, please. I believe that everyone is entitled to their own opinion about the game, online resources and XWIS, but I don't believe that bickering over it will solve anything.

You don't necessarily have to use CP1 or 2 (I don't and I still use the faster loading scripts). I do like the music, although, players that don't can spend about 30 seconds of their time to turn it down in the options. The only requirement to play online is the updater 1.037 patch, that's it and I believe that if other people want to play other maps, they can dedicate their own time to downloading them and hosting non-dedicated servers to this matter.

Renegade is currently downloadable (from several sources and some P2P sources too) and there is a no-cd crack for it, so you no longer require to buy the disk. I believe that we should come together as a community and work things out. If XWIS can't be bothered to host for Renegade anymore, that's their choice and we have no effect in that, but, we can still use our own minds and resources to keep the game running. I know a game's developer that went through 4 third party companies before they forgot about it and there is still a small community for that game after 7 years.

If you care about this game, even just a small amount, take this information into your heads and think about it, sensibly, please.
