Dualshock is the best controller I've ever owned. I find it to be far more pleasant to use than the old N64 controllers (which I have several of- the best of which is a 3rd-party design that plays like a Dualshock with only one analog). Every button is in reach at all times. The only games I can't stand to play on them are shooters and RTS games, neither of which I play on consoles with any kind of frequency anyway. I know plenty of people who prefer the Gamecube or XBox controllers... frankly, I don't know what sort of drugs they could be taking.

As for it being styled after the PS1 controller...well, sometimes they get it right the first time. Never throw out a good design when you can take it and make it better.
